This Island

Aiden Grimshaw

I met the King of England once
But the guys at the deli back home
They don't believe me
(Believe)
I ride my bike all around
Round my hometown
Where nobody knows me
(Knows me)
And they say that, "The problem is mine and I should take"
Take a more positive line on the situation
When solutions are staring me right in the face
Yet we've run out of time
But if I do what you'd say everything would be fine
Well no thanks, I'd rather sit here and die on this island
Cash it in and stick to the end
No thanks, I'd rather sit here and die on this island
Can't you see that I need this to end
I had a dream about a song
It was so strong
It made all the right's wrong
(Right, wrong)
But when I went to write it all down
Capture the sound
You won't believe what I found
(I found)
Yeah, it turn out bad, mad and sad when I played it
It sounded like, more like a fad that had lasted
A little too long that it had and I realized
This was as good as it got
There's no snowmen in hell 'cos it's too fuckin' hot
So no thanks, I'd rather sit here and die on this island
Cash it in and stick to the end
No thanks, I'd rather sit here and die on this island
Can't you see that I need this to end?
Yeah, I thought that I knew, who I was, what I know?
Nothing, or all the above did I mention
Those hip new ideas that I got from you last week
They sucked all the life out of life in a heartbeat
And ripped mine right out of my chest [Incomprehensible] right through

But you already knew that was true
Since you tried it the first time in 1989
When you were the one in my shoes
And some asshole like you told you what you should do
When you do what you do
And you had to do it how he wanted you to?
Have you learned how to live with regret?
Yeah, I can't get these things in my head
'Cos if I turned out like you I would wish I was dead
No thanks, I'd rather sit here and die on this island
No thanks, I'd rather sit here and die on this island
No thanks, I'd rather sit here and die on this island
No thanks, I'd rather sit here and die on this island
