

Blackberry Stone (Demo)

Laura Marling

Well I, own this field

And I wrote this sky

And I have no reason, to reason with youI'd be sad that I never held your hand as you were lowered

But I'd understand that I'd never let it go

I'd be sad that I never held your hand as you were lowered

But I'd understand that the world does what it doesAnd you never did learn to let the little things go

And you never did learn to let me be

And you never did learn to let little people grow

And you never did learn how to seeBut I whisper that I love this man

Now and for forever to your soul as it floats out off the window

To the world that you turned your back on

To the world that never really let you beAnd I am Laura now, and Laura still

And you did always say that one day I would suffer

You did always say that people get their pay

You did always say that I was going places

And that you wouldn't have it any other wayBut I couldn't turn my back on a world, for what I like wouldn't let me

But I couldn't turn my back on a world for

And I couldn't turn my back on sweet smelling Blackberry stone

Songwriters

LAURA BEATRICE MARLINGPublished by

Lyrics Â© BMG RIGHTS MANAGEMENT US, LLC Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941.

Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnlrics.com/>