

Joshua's Song

Sixtwhoseven

I was driving home,
talking to you on the phone.

It was cold that night,
had a feeling something wasn't right.

A chill was in the air,
is that a child lying there?
All alone was I, I can't just let him die...

When I close my eyes I can still remember,
that fateful day back in September.

How can tragedy be divine?
What if this child was mine?

Could he be my own?
Know, you're not alone.

Whisper in his ear,
Help will soon be here.

I cannot concede,
Come on Josh, Damn it breathe...

When I close my eyes I can still remember,
that fateful day back in December....

Lyrics Submitted by illfunk

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnlyrics.com/>