

Quarter Life Crisis

Olivia Lane

Sitting in my sweatpants, eating cheap Chinese.
Watching Netflix on my hand me down couch, thinking back to the 18 year old me. Man she thought she had it figured out. (Nope)
Go to college, get a good degree, be a millionaire by 23. Well I'm renting, spending more than I get. Oh well, I'll fix it with a road trip.

Cause hey! All I got figured out, is ain't nobody got it figured out. Caught in between where I wanna be, and where I am right now. Reals a little bit too real. I wonder how it's gonna feel on the other side of this quarter life crisis of mine.

Mom and Daddy bought a new RV, I think they're going middle age cra-azy. Gram and Grandad buzzing through their golden years, dropping one more olive in their martini. Hey I'm okay with growing older, but what's up with this growing up? I'm living, spinning my wheels around, feeling nothing but stuck.

Cause hey! All I got figured out, is ain't nobody got it figured out. Caught in between where I wanna be, and where I am right now. Reals a little bit too real. I wonder how it's gonna feel on the other side of this quarter life crisis of mine.

21, having too much fun.
22, you sure miss 21.
And 23 nobody likes you anyway.
24 can't drink like your college days.
And 25? What am I doing with my life?

Cause hey! All I got figured out, is ain't nobody got it figured out. Caught in between where I wanna be, and where I am right now. Reals a little bit too real. I wonder how it's gonna feel on the other side of this quarter life crisis of mine.

Ohhh, this crisis of mine.
Ohhh, it's a little too real.
Yeah, what's the deal?
I wanna get on the other side of this quarter life crisis of mine.

Lyrics provided by
<https://damnllyrics.com/>