

Hymn

Duncan Sheik

All the storms and oceans
All the sheltering sky
All this earth and she and I Wait, until it happens
Wait, the moment will come
Wait, but all those are already one And she asks me, how many sunrises
Will we watch from start to finish
How many will we witness? And my answers are only ever surmises
Maybe a handful of times
Before the next life, before the next life Here, we stop beneath the leaves
Here, a moment to stay
Here, a gift of pale green color, here above her And she asks me, how many sunrises
Will we watch from start to finish
How many will we witness? And my answers are only ever surmises
Maybe a handful of times
Before the next life A kiss, a prayer, a laugh, a song
She won't try to tell me, what's right from wrong
A song, a laugh, a prayer, a kiss
She won't try to tell me, I need more than this All my answers, all my surmises
Will never do it justice
She'll just have to trust it Wait here, 'til the sun rises
Watch from start to finish
No one as our witness
With no one as our witness

Songwriters

SHEIK, DUNCAN Published by

Lyrics © Universal Music Publishing Group

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>