

I Want You

Joe Anderson, Dana Fuchs, T.V. Carpio & Ensemble

Look girl, I'm not gonna sing
'Cause I just don't do that
I see you in between class when my mind does a task
One glimpse of your eyes and my heart beats fast
A mysterious fantasy, lovely young queen
Your poll so subtle just like the magazine
Come and visit my sister, she's in the livin' room
Eat doughnuts and milk, listen to a pop tune
Used to be my babysitter, I want you for my women
Without you girl, my life is bitter like a lemon
I want you, I want you
I daydream of seeds, girl, when you pass by
I wonder what the future holds for you and I
I tell my friends favorite tales about me and you
My total devotion for you is true
See you get on the bus, I trip as I get on My body gets warm but my mind is torn
I admit you're the queen of elegant
Maybe I'm just another, "Puppy love lucids"
I will tell you straight up, not to load on a letter
Opportunity knocks, I feel I just better
Disappear out of sight, rejection is my fright
To me you're like a drug boy, easy red light
I want you, I want you
To weak or wreak, I can't speak, I'm messin' up in school
Just to hear your name, girl, it's makes me drool
As you sing, "Full Settle" on the college choir
My temperature level grows much higher
Spent a night over my house with my sister and friends
I wish you wouldn't treat me like I'm your cousin
Your highschool year book under my pillow
You walk by my window, I see your silhouette
Candle light is what I desire
But all I get to do is fix your flat tyre
When you ring my bell, perfume I smell
The aroma pierces through my heartcell
I tell you that my sister isn't here today
You go away but I wish you'd stay

Yes girl, I'm twistin' around your finger

When you leave your perfume lingers

I want you, I want you

The clock tick-tocks as I lay in my bed

It's visions of you circlin' through my head

I sip lemon, Ice-T, read a magazine

Wish we were involved in a sneaky love scene

Saturday night, it's time to party y'all

But an unseen force has my back for the wall

All eyes hit the door, red dress shines loud

The moment has come, my fantasies here now

You sip gin and tonic with the double-hole straw

Finally I get the nerve to by you one more

The bar tender smirks, I whisper, "He's a jerk"

I'm wearin' leather pants and a thirty dollar shit

Often usin' double mints, sit back, crack a smile

Tryin' to act like y'all relaxed and not a child

See I'm sixteen and you're in college

Love is sweet, then please give me the knowledge

I want you, I want you

See it's easy to detect a line that's been said

What you don't know is your the women I've wanted to get

For years and now I'm here sweet dear

Cool in the snow under a polar bear

I light your cigarette with a Raphel lighter

Your dress seems like it's gettin' tighter and tighter

The ice cubes' melt, the heat is felt

The cards' on the table and my deal is dealt

I want you, I want you

I had to subsequent my soul, cowardness kept a hold on me

And the key was analysed on my role as a man

To instigate romance not break down and cry

When you ask for a dance

Some fellas talk to her but she walks by

She can only say no, it's not do or die

Like Bedstock, it's natures' way

A sweet love story from LL Cool J

I want you, I want you
