Tomorrow I'll Go

John Kongos

we began with hands and eyes, and our lips were careless and free.
and youd never think before a kiss, and id never fear childish laughter, and wed never think about there after,
and i said yes tomorrow ill go and we agreed
then we talked of life and love and reasons and destinies and we asked each other always why and like children we puzzled the answers and as children we were always sure and i said yes but tomorrow ill go
and we talked of truth and the past I believed every word and you made me eat onions and prawns and soon your thoughts were like mine and my thoughts were just like yours nd still i said yes tomorrow ill go ill go and we bought an old sheep dog and it seemed like we lived around him and he was not yours and he wasnt mine so he must have been ours you said how can you ever leave still i said yes tomorrow ill go ill go and one day you said how about a baby and i said ok but i may want to go tomorrow you said of course and then i knew
that i would never go tomorrow tomorrow never go never go today or tomorrow never leave never go never go
